DEATH NOTICE

McCHESNEY

FRED SANDERSON McCHESNEY
(Age 68)

On Thursday, October 12, 2017, Fred Sanderson McChesney died peacefully with family at his side in Washington, DC. Beloved husband of the late Sheila Elaine McChesney, loving father of Madeleine Claire (Eduardo) Patricia (Wesley), Mary Elizabeth ("Lizzy"), Robert William IV (Kristina) (Jennifer), and James Edward, and grandfather of Thomas Daniel and Nicolas Matthew Wilson. Fred had a distinguished professional life which began with the practice of law at a large firm in Washington, DC. He went on to serve as the Associate Director for Policy and Evaluation at the Federal Trade Commission during the Reagan administration. The bulk of his substantial career, spanning 35 years, was as a professor of both law and economics at numerous universities, including Northwestern where he was the James S. Haddad Chair from 1999 to 2011, Cornell from 1997 to 1999, Emory from 1993 to 1997, and, most recently, the University of Miami School of Law where he was the de la Cruz-Menchaca '10 Endowed Chair in Law and Economics. Professor McChesney's primary teaching and scholarly interests were in the fields of antitrust, corporations, and law and economics, about which he wrote over one hundred books, articles, monographs, and other scholarly works published by leading academic presses and journals. Fred is perhaps best known for his groundbreaking work in the field of public choice economics. Public choice economics, recognized with a Nobel Prize in economics for one of its founders in 1986, argues that political actors behave according to private incentives instead of the public good. Fred extended the literature in his 1997 Harvard Press book, Money for Nothing: Politicians, Rent Extraction, and Political Extortion, arguing that politicians receive contributions and other rewards not only for acting, but also for threatening to act, and then not executing on those threats. Hence the title of the book. In the 1995 University of Chicago Press book, Causes and Consequences of Antitrust: The Public Choice Perspective, which Professor McChesney both edited and contributed to, he used public choice theory to critique claims that antitrust laws serve the public good and are thus vulnerable to special interest groups like other laws. He also wrote extensively on the importance of providing rights to property, noting that the failure to provide such rights historically to Native Americans has been a significant cause of their economic poverty. His 2003 Princeton University Press book, Property, Cooperation, Conflict, and Law, is an important contribution to property rights literature. Professor McChesney was noted for his excellent teaching, received numerous awards for his excellence in the classroom, and was a mentor to many students during his long academic career. Visitation will be held Friday, November 10 from 4 to 7:30 p.m., at Holy Redeemer Catholic Church, 9705 Summit Avenue, Kensington, MD 20885. There will be a Mass of Christian Burial at Holy Redeemer Church on Saturday, November 11 at 10 a.m. Burial arrangements are private. In lieu of flowers, donations may be made to the University of Miami School of Law in memory of Fred S. McChesney, 1311 Mile Drive, Coral Gables, FL 33146. DEATH NOTICE

PRENTICE

PATRICK HENRY PRENTICE

Died on October 12, 2017 (Age 74). Patrick was born on August 29, 1943 in Minneapolis, Minnesota to Lois Harmon Prentice and Henry W. Prentice. He spent much of his early childhood overseas as his father was in the foreign service. He graduated from Annandale High School in 1961 and from George Washington University in 1966. With his first wife, Dinah Gray Wiley, Patrick had two children. In 1974 he moved with his family to the DC area, and in 1979 moved to Washington where he married his second wife, Lynn McDowell. He was a writer, screenwriter, a film producer and director for National Geographic, and self-published a novel, Easterland. An avid sports fan, political junkie, ballroom dancer, voracious reader, and deep thinker, Patrick touched many lives. He is survived by his children Jessica Prentice and Joshua Gray Prentice; his brother John Prentice; and his sister Linda Prentice Thoma. We will miss him dearly, but a reliable source tells us "He's got his swaggar back". Private family services will be held on Saturday, October 21, 2017.
